

Four machines sold to new Australian customer

Prodways Group has received orders for four machines from Australia's leading manufacturer of clear orthodontic aligners.

After an assessment phase lasting several months, Australia's leading manufacturer of clear orthodontic aligners by 3D printing has just confirmed its choice of MovingLight® technology to be installed in its first production plant. As in the case of the US order announced early December, these latest orders concerned the MovingLight® LD20 printer, the most productive model in the Prodways range.

While the transaction concluded at the end of the year concerned only four machines, as explained in the previous release this order heralds an investment program that is expected to lead to further orders over the coming 24 months.

After installation and production ramp-up, the first four machines are expected to consume over five tons of Prodways material per year.
